Dangerous Roadside Washout

Marine Drive, Outer Cove

12 April 2019

There are dangerous roadside washouts located near the guiderails on the cliff edge on the ocean side of Marine Drive between Outer Cove Beach and the Outer Cove Lookout. Although the Department of Transportation and Works (Marine Drive road authority) have placed barricades in the area, as a temporary measure, the general public are still advised to exercise extreme caution and avoid travelling on the ocean side of Marine Drive within the area indicated.

As warmer weather occurs, the general public, including children, will be out biking, walking and exploring.

Parents are strongly urged to speak to your children and warn them of the dangers and to stay away from the area.

The Town is asking the general public to share this important message.
